A person is seen from behind, wearing a red long-sleeved shirt and a black baseball cap with the word 'RUN' in white letters. They are looking down at a large, densely packed camp of small, simple houses with blue corrugated metal roofs. The camp is situated in a valley, surrounded by dark, forested hills. The scene is dimly lit, suggesting dusk or dawn, with some lights visible within the camp. The overall mood is somber and contemplative.

Another Home, Je Yang Camp. It has been almost six years that IDPs have been staying in camps. Many IDPs fled their villages and left behind everything they own and now stay in Je Yang IDP camp. It is located in the border area between China and Kachin State. There's one question that every IDP has in their mind: When can I return home from this camp and when will there be peace?
